

Creative Director: Kirsten Holland

Designer: Damie C.

Wow! Overall this looks really, really nice. I really don't have a lot of feedback. It's super easy to navigate, understand, and read, and the visual language overall is appropriate to the content. I love the way you formatted the gallery section.

- I would like to see the text on the home page be a little larger (the same size as the text on the other pages) – it feels a little proportionally small and a little hard to read.
- I like that the different menu links change color in the hover state, but I think having them change to white instead of yellow would work better. The yellow kinda clashes too much with the orange and everything else.
- The arrows in the gallery section could also turn white instead of yellow.
- The space between paragraphs could be a little smaller.

Those nitpicky things are really all I can think of – if you want to dedicate the extra time, you can always play around with responsiveness and microtypography things, but I think you have really nailed the design choices overall and I can tell it is well thought out!